THE CASE

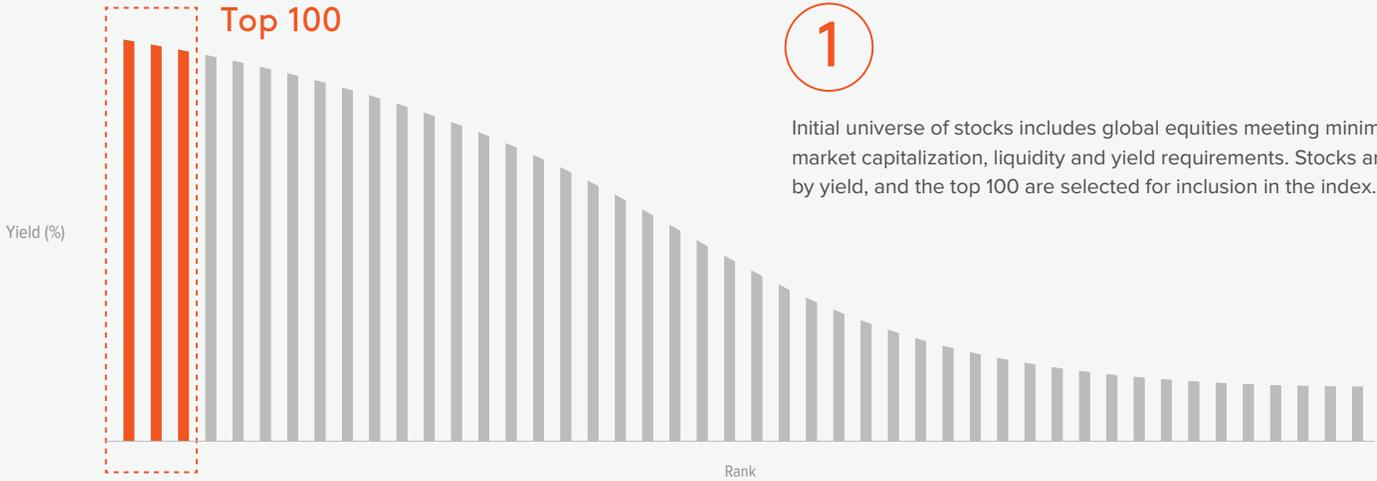

Traditionally, dividend-focused funds have categorized stocks as non-dividend payers, dividend payers or high dividend payers. By segmenting stocks into just a few categories, "high dividend" funds tend to own a broad slice of the dividend-paying market. This strategy results in yields that only marginally exceed the overall market.

SuperDividend accesses just the highest tier of dividend payers, resulting in yields that have historically exceeded other high dividend ETFs.

HOW IT WORKS

1

Initial universe of stocks includes global equities meeting minimum market capitalization, liquidity and yield requirements. Stocks are ranked by yield, and the top 100 are selected for inclusion in the index.

2

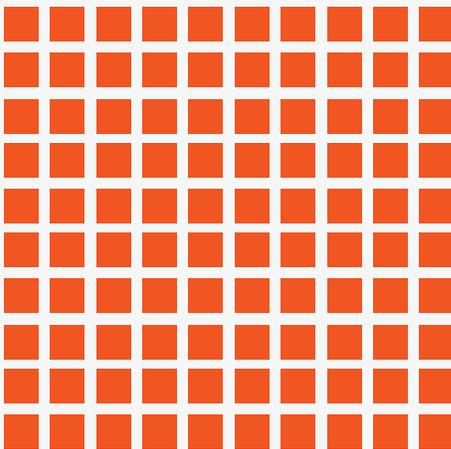

These 100 stocks are equally weighted to reduce the risk associated with owning any one security.

3

Once a quarter, the companies included in the index are screened for dividend cuts or negative outlook concerning the companies' dividend policies. Stocks removed from the index during these quarterly reviews are replaced with the next highest yielding stocks not currently in the index.

Components are rebalanced annually.

Investing involves risk, including the possible loss of principal. International investments may involve risk of capital loss from unfavorable fluctuation in currency values, from differences in generally accepted accounting principles, or from economic or political instability in other nations. Emerging markets involve heightened risks related to the same factors as well as increased volatility and lower trading volume. High yielding stocks are often speculative, high-risk investments. These companies can be paying out more than they can support and may reduce their dividends or stop paying dividends at any time, which could have a material adverse effect on the stock price of these companies and the Fund's performance.

Shares of ETFs are bought and sold at market price (not NAV) and are not individually redeemed from the Fund. Brokerage commissions will reduce returns. Global X NAVs are calculated using prices as of 4:00 PM Eastern Time. The closing price is the Mid-Point between the Bid and Ask price as of the close of exchange. Closing price returns do not represent the returns you would receive if you traded shares at other times. Indices are unmanaged and do not include the effect of fees, expenses or sales charges. One cannot invest directly in an index.
