

The Global X SuperIncome Preferred ETF (SPFF) is designed to track 50 of the highest yielding preferred securities from the U.S. and Canada.

KEY FEATURES

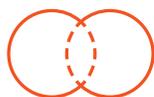

Higher Yield

Preferred stocks have historically offered investors a higher yield than corporate bonds of similar credit quality.

Preferential Tax Treatment

Preferred securities may also provide an income advantage. Income from preferred stocks may be treated as qualified dividends (QDI), rather than as regular interest income.

Diversification

With low correlations to other asset classes like equities and traditional fixed income, preferred securities can potentially help diversify investors' portfolios.

Preferred stock may not pay a dividend, an issuer may suspend payment of dividends on preferred stock at any time. Diversification does not ensure a profit or guarantee against a loss.

THE CASE

For investors seeking higher dividend yields, preferred shares are an asset class worth considering due to their unique combination of bond and equity characteristics.

Comparison Between Preferred Shares, Common Stock and Bonds

	Preferred Shares	Common Stock	Bonds
Primarily Traded	On an Exchange	On an Exchange	Over the Counter
Place in Capital Structure	Lower than bonds, higher than equity	Lowest	Highest
Credit Rating	Available	N/A	Available

For investors seeking higher dividend yields, preferred shares are an asset class worth considering due to their unique combination of bond and equity characteristics:

- Preferred shares generally pay stable dividends with more frequent distributions than common shares.
- Preferred shares have the potential to appreciate in value, offering additional growth potential for investors.

In addition, preferred shareholders have priority over common shareholders with regard to claims on company earnings and assets — this may provide downside protection if a company is forced to liquidate its assets (assuming all creditors have been paid). By also screening for the highest yielding preferred securities and paying monthly dividends, SPFF allows investors to diversify their income streams and potentially increase the yield of their overall portfolio.

There is no guarantee that dividends will be paid.

Investing involves risk, including the possible loss of principal. International investments may involve risk of capital loss from unfavorable fluctuation in currency values, from differences in generally accepted accounting principles or from economic or political instability in other nations. Preferred stock is subject to many of the risks associated with debt securities, including interest rate risk. In addition, preferred stock may not pay a dividend, an issuer may suspend payment of dividends on preferred stock at any time, and in certain situations, an issuer may call or redeem its preferred stock or convert it to common stock. High yielding stocks are often speculative, high-risk investments. These companies can be paying out more than they can support and may reduce their dividends or stop paying dividends at any time, which could have a material adverse effect on the stock price of these companies and the Fund's performance. SPFF is non-diversified.

Shares of ETFs are bought and sold at market price (not NAV) and are not individually redeemed from the Fund. Brokerage commissions will reduce returns. Global X NAVs are calculated using prices as of 4:00 PM Eastern Time. The closing price is the Mid-Point between the Bid and Ask price as of the close of exchange. Closing price returns do not represent the returns you would receive if you traded shares at other times. Indices are unmanaged and do not include the effect of fees, expenses or sales charges. One cannot invest directly in an index.
